AGAIN RIOTING.

Stood on Work Cey the Starving Distant Masses, and German Instructors Hottly Harangue the Excited Crowd.

BERLIN, March 5.—A dispatch from Danzig says that serious rioting, similar to that which took place recently in this city, occurred there Friday.

In Berlin, the trouble was caused by the large number of people out of work, and, doubtless, the flames of discord were fanned by the emperor's recent utterances about crushing and driving out of Germany all those who oppose him.

The troubles at Danzig like the troubles at Leipzig and many other places, began by a mass meeting of the unemployed, by fiery addresses made by agitators and by heated suggestions upon the part of socialist orators.

A delegation was then appointed to call upon the chief local magistrate, who had been warned that the trouble was brewing. The magistrate referred to the hunger march of unemployed men, and the crowd, who were in a state of great excitement.

The departure of this happy mob was witnessed by about 3,000 other workmen, who gave them a hearty cheer as they marched away, and the crowd could have been most glad of the opportunity of accompanying them.

No sooner was the steamboat out of sight, than the angry feeling which animated the hungry mob of unemployed laborers, began to obtain the upper hand in them.

There was much shouting and swearing, many men were shouting about the emperor, and the socialist and anarchist orators, seeing that the temper of the men was such that they might be expected to do almost anything, began to harangue the mob, telling them of their wrongs, of the oppression of the government and of the cruel bearing of the emperor, the Nero of Germany, who, they said, instead of being in sympathy with the masses of poverty-stricken people throughout the country, who were unable to obtain work enough to keep their starving families in bread and cheese, threatened those who were opposed to this order of things, with the execution of the guillotine.

Of course this is only an idea of the wild sayings which were poured into the ears of excited workmen, with the result that no sooner was the mob set on foot by the socialist and anarchist orators, than they were set on a rampage, and the mob of unemployed laborers, who were unable to obtain work enough to keep their starving families in bread and cheese, threatened those who were opposed to this order of things, with the execution of the guillotine.

CROP OUTLOOK.

Reports From a Number of California Correspondents.

A Larger Acreage of Wheat Now Than Ever Before, But Too Early to Make Predictions.—The Supply of Grapes Small.—Fruit Prospects Good.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 7.—Telegrams were received by the associated press from one hundred correspondents in California to determine the present crop outlook in the state. The reports are very complete and cover in detail the principal fruit and grain districts.

Rains have been general throughout the state. In the San Joaquin Valley the winter's rainfall has averaged eight inches, while the average is usually four inches. In other valleys of the state the rainfall has been normal, and rains have come both before and after the season.

It is estimated that a larger acreage of wheat has been sown than ever before, and the present outlook is for the largest crop in the history of the state. The grain crop, however, yet depends upon the rains in April and the absence of hot "northerly" winds to insure the crop, so that it is too early to base predictions upon the present yield for next year, though the present outlook for a large crop could not be more favorable.

Apricot, peach, almond and prune orchards in full bloom, and the crop of apricots and cherries is very excellent condition. The season is favorable for growing wheat and barley. The outlook for prunes is for a larger crop than last year. In Los Angeles county the extension of the fruit trees is in progress. In San Diego county crops are making good growth. By careful estimates the harvest of cereals will be thirty per cent in excess of any previous year. The rains came late, but since seeding the ground has been kept in good condition by timely showers. El Cajon vineyard reports the vines in excellent condition. In the apple and deciduous fruit belts at Julian there have been ample rains and will be big crops. The orange crop of southern California is making good growth. The supply of oranges and lemons for the winter has been good. The supply of grapes is also good. The outlook for the fruit crop is very good.
